HOMESTEADS FOR PORTUGUESE IMMIGRANTS.

We mention in another part of this issue, the probability that a part, if not a considerable part, of our recently imported Portuguese population would seek their settlement on the Coast when their contract terms expire, for the reason that they see no prospect of securing homesteads in this country. If this should be the course of events it would be very much to be regretted for every reason. The class of people who want to occupy and own moderate holdings, and make their living out of the soil, is precisely the class wanted here. They rear large families who will likewise desire to remain in the country, if they can have a foothold. They require schools; they supply home productions and themselves make a market for what others produce or import.

Let us admit at once that there is reason in this purpose, if it be a purpose, to leave the Kingdom. With all the land there is in the Kingdom which is unpopulated, or very sparsely settled, it is yet difficult for the poor man to procure land that he can live on and live by.

The Government still owns—say six hundred thousand acres. Of this a large portion is desert and not available for residence or livelihood in small
